In the HexPad Product Key, we have an object with which you can make all kinds of calculations. From sides, the object has a central part which stores all the numbers, and a narrow part which contains the calculations. The numbers and calculations are both part of this object, and you can change them or calculate yourself. Simply cut the part which stores the numbers and use that part to display the numbers on the small object. When the user taps the small object, the algorithm for all calculations is conducted on the numbers entered with the numbers inputting. We have a lot of built in functions, like square root, binary, bsearch, etc. The program offers four languages. Currently supported are: Hindi English Russian German Each translation can be found in the 'Language' section of the settings. HexPad Features: *
